

ABSTRACT

A system includes a central management agent and one or more field replaceable unit type specific management buses. Each field replaceable unit type specific management bus may couple the central management agent to a set of field replaceable units, with each unit in each set being the same type of field replaceable unit.